

Get to know Stephan Lämmle, new Chair of ePBIG

On a personal note

Now with focus on International Commercial and Facultative insurance

With effect of May 1st 2023, the chair for the ePlacing Implementation group (ePBIG) changed to Stephan Lämmle, Munich Re.

“As an engineer I’m used to constantly striving for improvements in processes and efficiency as well as to eliminate unnecessary and redundant operations in technology. Throughout my 28 years professional life in the reinsurance and insurance industry, including 17 years of leadership and management of Property & Engineering (re-)insurance business, this has translated into seeking to improve data management and processing. For example into facilitating and automating work processes in order to allow underwriters and experts to focus on their core competencies, instead of wasting time and energy for redundant data captures.”

For his new role within the Ruschlikon initiative, he sees the increase in process efficiency being accompanied by enhanced data quality as a main benefit for all stakeholders of our industry. Subsequently, our partners are enabled to allocate their expertise for its true purpose.

“I thus regard it as a privilege to serve the industry on its journey to digital transformation by assuming chairmanship of the ePBIG with its current focus on facultative business. I am looking forward to working together with a great team consisting of highly experienced and dedicated representatives from our industry.”
